WE NOMINATE

Carlos Heard Baker, one of this country's leading authorities in the intertwined fields of modern American and British literatures and a Princetonian for almost a quarter-century, who made "literary headlines" this week with his designation as official biographer for the late great Ernest Hemingway. Announcement of the singal honor, made jointly by the author's widow and his American publishers, Charles Scribner's Sons, confirmed the fact that the 52-year old Baker, Woodrow Wilson Professor of Literature in Princeton University, was the first scholar of the front rank to give Hemingway his rightful critical due.

It was just about a decade ago, the fall after he had completed a three-year term on the Borough's Board of Education, that Baker gained wide recognition with his publication of the first full-scale study of Hemingway, "HEMINGWAY, The Writer as Artist." Paradoxically enough, Baker completed his work, which has since been translated into several languages, too soon to include more than a footnote on the now famous "The Old Man and the Sea." Yet Baker's tightly written footnote about "The Old Man"—in the opinion of a nationally circulated literary journal—was "probably the best American book review of the year 1952."

Ever since his undergraduate years at Dartmouth, where as a member of the Class of 1932 he won Phi Beta Kappa laurels and took part in a variety of extra-curricular activities ranging from the presidency of his fraternity to the managership of the hockey team, Baker has been one of the most versatile practitioners of the art (or science) of teaching. Winner in 1956 of the first Balch Prize Poetry Contest with an excellent sonnet sequence, Baker created a mild stir in the spring of 1958 with the publication of his first novel, "A Friend in Power," a highly imaginative account of the election of a university president, that was subsequently condensed and reprinted by the Reader's Digest Book Club.

Unlike the majority of his peers in the groves of higher education, Baker launched his teaching career on the secondary level. Following his graduation from Dartmouth, and upon taking his master's degree at Harvard, he taught for a year in a high school in his native Maine and then spent two years at the Nichols School, Buffalo, N. Y. He joined Princeton's Department of English in 1937, received his doctorate in 1940 and over the years has been in growing demand as a lecturer in colleges and universities. In 1957-58, as he was rounding out eight years as Princeton's departmental chairman, he ably served as an "educational ambassador" to Europe under the terms of the Fulbright Act.

Baker, a prolific writer, a past member of the Fiction Jury for The National Book Awards and in years gone by editorial consultant to New Jersey Legislative Commissions, was the founding editor of Princeton's Good Reading Supplement, designed as "a modest and partial answer" to the questions: "What can a university do for its alumni?" and "How can a busy man know what is really worth reading?". The Supplement, comprised of capsule reviews of new books in all areas, is now periodically prepared by faculty experts and distributed to well over 30,000 alumni through the "Princeton Alumni Weekly."

For accepting the heavy responsibility of preparing the definitive biography for one of the most stimulating writers yet produced by these United States; for his contributions as teacher, scholar and author-critic; for his capacity for interpreting our literary heritage and relating its development to the driving forces in American life; he is TOWN TOPICS' nominee for

A LITTLE OF EVERTHING

Political Results Mixed. As it has so often in other years, Princeton created a Republican island for itself at the polls Tuesday while a flood of ballots at the county and state levels sent Democrats surging to victory. The tide that swept Judge Richard J. Hughes into the governor's office had national and even international implications, stemming as it did in large measure from President Kennedy's personal participation in the race.

While the "man whom nobody had heard of before the April primaries" was staging an unexpectedly clear-cut victory over Republican James P. Mitchell, G.O.P. backers in Princeton not only survived the trend but placed their candidates in office by substantial margins. The plurality accorded them in the Borough was greater than even the most optimistic among them had felt possible.

Henry S. Patterson, 2d, a utility company executive not yet in his '40's, was elected mayor of the Borough by 579 votes. In his first political campaign, Mr. Patterson polled 1979 votes to 1400 for the incumbent, Mayor Raymond F. Male. The latter had sought to become the first Democrat to serve a third term in Borough Hall in more than three decades.

Mr. Patterson's running mates, Alan W. Carick and Joseph R. Wood, stayed even with him, returning the municipality to the all-Republican status which prevailed during the early years of the '50's. Mr. Carrick was accorded 1973 votes, Mr. Wood, 1902. Their opponents, incumbent John B. Redding Jr. and Miss Esther C. Dilworth, drew 1367 and 1330, respectively.

Wilson Wins. A closer race was staged in Princeton Township, but when the results were toted up, that municipality, too, had chosen to revert to the all-Republican committee which has directed its destiny in virtually traditional fashion. William L. Wilson will join four G.O.P. incumbents on January 1, having defeated William L. Marvel, 2051 to 1854.

Mr. Marvel, elected in 1958, would have been the first Democrat within memory to have run successfully for a second term in the heavily-Republican municipality. He won four of the Township's nine districts: one, three, four and five.

In the Borough, the Republicans took six of eight, losing only the invariably Democratic fourth and sixth, which moved out of the Republican camp a decade or so ago. Interestingly enough, the latter remained Democratic despite the issue of Urban Renewal, the reconstruction project which would have been centered in the sixth had it ever become an actuality. With the Republicans soon to take over as sole tenants of Borough Hall, Urban Renewal is presumably in search of an undertaker.

Numerous reasons were advanced in the early post-election hours for the defeat of Mayor Male and his ticket. They ranged from the Urban Renewal issue itself, which drew votes in opposition from districts other than the sixth, to dissatisfaction within the police department over policy governing recent promotions and more isolated matters such as sidewalk construction on Cedar Lane.

The Mitchell tide that prevailed in Princeton was likewise an asset working for Mr. Patterson, but he was no coat-tail candidate. Actually, he topped his ticket and clearly won on the electorate's desire to change leadership.

Some 3430 registered voters (out of 5063 eligible) went to the polls in the Borough on Tuesday, a turnout of 67 percent that is about normal for a year in which no national offices were at stake. The balloting was slightly higher in the Township: 4015 out of 5573 voted to create a turnout of 72 percent.

HUGHES' MARGIN HIGH

He Wins With Ease. Never trailing while the results were being tabulated throughout Tuesday night, Judge Hughes maintained a lead that ranged from 30,000 to 70,000 votes out of some 2,000,000 cast. He ran up a 24,000 plurality in his home county of Mercer, cut heavily into normally Republican counties in the southern part of the state and ran PRINCETONIAN WINS: Democrat Edward J. Sweeney was named to a second two-year term in the Legislature as a member of the Assembly.

Person To Person

Cory T Kammler

We heard about a sign said to have been seen in an antique shop window that read: "If you think it's junk, come in and price it."

It's humorous, but between the lines are the intimations of an old saying, that suggests that in many things, there is more than meets the eye, and to cover a reverse situation, there is an old adage that says, "All that glitters is not gold."

Actually, the overall moral in these sayings, is that in all fields in which you are not an expert, your best bet is to depend only on people who are specialists in their endeavors and whose established integrity is proof that they place a higher value on their reputation, than on a few fast dollars.

The automobile business is one in which most people can be fooled or cheated at least once, and the buyer of a car who is not particular about where he buys it, just so long as it looks good or is of a particular model or make, is taking a very big gamble. He gambles not only hundreds of dollars, but sometimes his very safety is in the balance.

That is why we are dedicated to serving you with utmost care and loyalty. Kammler Buick-Pontiac Co., Route 206, opposite Princeton Airport, WA 1-2222.

ahead of Democratic forecasts in the heavily-populated northern counties.

In winning, he extended the Democratic leadership which Gov. Meyner launched when he defeated Paul J. Troast in 1953. Judge Hughes' victory was seen as approval of Meyner's eight years in Trenton; as repudiation of Mr. Mitchell's oft-repeated charges that he was hand-picked by unsavory political bosses; and as the first major endorsement at the polls of the Kennedy administration since the inauguration last January.

Results which did follow form completely gave the Democrats their anticipated sweep in Mercer County. All the candidates were elected, by margins ranging from 3000 to 25,000 votes.

Biggest landslide was achieved by State Senator Sido L. Ridolfi, who won a new term by piling up 55,000 votes to 30,000 for Daniel A. O'Donnell. Closest margin was the 8000 by which Democrat George J. Sutch, candidate for Freeholder, won over Mrs. Regina H. Meridith, a Republican who had waged a campaign productive of considerable voter appeal.

In contrast to other years, no Democrat carried either Princeton Borough or Township. Closest was Sen. Ridolfi, who lost the Borough by only 169 votes.

QUESTIONS APPROVED

All Four Win. The four questions on Tuesday's ballot were approved at the state level by margins of approximately 2 to 1. Here in Princeton, they were backed by a ratio running as high as 9 to 1.

Given voter approval were the institutional bond issue, providing $40 million for mental hospitals, homes for the retarded and penal institutions; the "Green Acres" issue, allocating $60 million for public acquisition of land for recreation and conservation; the law which will enable emergency appointment of governing bodies in the event of nuclear disaster; and the measure which makes games of chance legal at agricultural fairs. The latter received the largest "no" vote in Princeton, passing by less than 2 to 1.

ROUND - UP

The community's two police commissioners, Dan D. Coyle in the Borough and Maurice F. Healy in the Township, have a problem on their hands because this year New Year's Eve falls on a Sunday. . . two township tavern owners have asked their governing body to amend the ordinance requiring Sunday closing so that they may open that day at 6 p.m. . . . Mr. Healy plans to confer with the Borough to seek an identical solution to problem.

Motorists keep banging into the bridges on the outskirts of town. . . . a Cranbury and a Trenton driver tangled on the Harrison Street span across Lake Carnegie last Wednesday, striking the side railing, and another Trenton driver hit the Stony Brook bridge on Mercer Road so hard Tuesday morning that repairs to the structure were needed.

Three temperature readings in the 80's were recorded last week. . . . it was 84 on Sunday, golfers on Springdale wearing shorts as they walked by a Japanese cherry tree blooming happily.

Three days earlier, predawn readings had been as low as 28, but the experts say the odds are against another severe winter—almanac forebodings to the contrary. . . . the heavy and almost constant snowfall last December, January and February were completely contrary to normal winter developments, so that immediate repitition is unlikely based on the percentages alone.

Police Chief Peter J. McCrohan has a word of warning on those piles of leaves that lie in the gutter waiting to be collected . . . don't drive through them—they're a temptation to children to play in them. . . . and don't light them to start a cheery bonfire—it damages the road surface and gutters, and is against the law.

John Green, 59, Laurel Avenue, Kingston, who serves as a school crossing guard at Nassau and University Place, suffered a heart attack while on duty Monday morning. . . . taken to Princeton Hospital in the First Aid Unit ambulance, he was reported in fair condition.

Allen's Green Tavern, 150 Witherspoon, reported the weekend theft of $60 in quarters from a coin-operated pool table. . . . and three car owners told Borough police that batteries had been stolen from their automobiles. . . . the victims were T. Aldrich Finnegan, 2 Dickinson Street; Miss Lene Olson, Elm Road; and Thomas McGrath, the Graduate College. . . . all three batteries were taken while the cars were parked on University-owned lots near Baker Rink or the Graduate College.

Princetonians who looked at mail cancelled Saturday morning did a double-take . . . instead of reading "7:30 a.m., November 4," a batch of letters were marked "7:30 a.m., November 24". . . . the error left a lot of people wondering where they'd been during those three weeks.

IT'S COLLEGE ROAD: When the railroad signals are installed and the new College Road is opened to the driving public, Princeton will have its first grade-crossing. Pennsylvania Railroad time-tables were not interrupted for building the crossing because railroad officials are used to this kind of thing and can do it in record time. At press-time, the University still had hopes that the new road would be open in time for the Yale game on November 18; at present, things seem to hinge on a Public Service tie-up for the crossing signals. Since this photograph was taken, the road has been cut through to Alexander Street which lies across the bottom of the picture. The building in the upper right is the new Junior Faculty apartment and the bridge is the Washington Road span across Lake Carnegie. (Howard Schrader Photo)

STREETS ARE PROBLEMS

For Township Committee. Speed on Rosedale Road and through traffic on Valley Road occupied Township Committee Monday night, in a session that also included dogs, burning leaves, snow and a tax refund.

Rosedale Road. Mrs. William W. Augustine and 100 other residents of Rosedale Road, users of the road and parents of Johnson Park children, submitted to Committee a petition asking for reduction of the speed limit from 45 to 35 m.p.h. and to 15 m.p.h. at the school.

Committee has gone on record before as concurring with a similar proposal, and in order to strengthen its hand with state highway officials, who will ultimately decide the fate of Rosedale, Committee would like the support of Lawrence Township, the Princeton Township Board of Education, Mercer County, and possibly Educational Testing Service, which is on Rosedale Road.

The County already agrees, Mayor R. Kenneth Fairman reminded Committee. He then learned from Mrs. Augustine that Lawrence Township Committee had unanimously agreed at its last meeting, to the 35 m.p.h. limit. The Township School Board is also in agreement, and so is the Township Traffic Safety Committee; however, as Mayor Fairman pointed out, 15 m.p.h. is below the permissible limit, and will have to be 25 m.p.h. to meet state approval.

Joseph R. Nini, Township administrator, told Committee that Township police had clocked drivers on the road, and found that most of them drive at 51-53 miles an hour.

Committee approved the recommendation of the Traffic Safety Committee and passed it on to the county with a request for county support in dealing with the state.

Valley Road. Committee decided, unanimously, to ask state highway officials to approve all the street changes requested in Committee's previous "package" appeal to the state, specifically stating that the controversial Valley Road matter be left out entirely, and discussed separately with state officials.

A petition signed by 123 residents of the Valley-Walnut-Loomis Court area was submitted to Committee, asking that the Township urge the state to let Valley Road remain as it is.

State highway officials would like to make Valley a through street from Route 206 to the Shopping Center, reversing the stop signs at Witherspoon and Jefferson. They have said that they will not approve the Township's requests for various street changes without the Valley Road shift.

Committee's decision Monday night to ask the state for approval of all its requests, leaving Valley Road out altogether, is regarded by Township officials as a test case of good-will on the part of state officials.

Formal appeal to the state will come after Committee passes the necessary resolution at its November 20 meeting.

Leaves and Snow. Committee passed on first reading two clean-up ordinances. The first provides a maximum $25 fine for householders who dispose of and burn leaves and refuse in the street. The second requires householders to clear snow off their walks no later than 48 hours after a snowfall has stopped, and to treat ice on sidewalks so that it will not be hazardous.

Property owners who refuse to man shovels will find a Township crew doing the job, with the cost added to the tax bill, and a $10 maximum fine imposed to boot.

Zoning Request Withdrawn

John P. Poe, President of the First National Bank, issued the following statement this week:

"The First National Bank of Princeton has decided to withdraw its application for approval of a variance for its property at Nassau Street and Riverside Drive for the Bank to build a branch.

"The announcement stated that 'in the interest of community harmony' the Bank is abandoning its plan. The Bank statement continued: 'while there was a demand from a great number of people in the East Nassau area for the extention of banking service and improvemeot of center of town traffic conditions, many others were opposed to the idea.' In view of this division of sentiment by residents of Princeton Township and Princeton Borough, the Bank made this decision.

"The application was to have been the subject of a public hearing before the Borough Council for Thursday, November 9, at 8 p.m."

Mr. Poe's decision was made known after Mayor Raymond F. Male's weekly report, calling attention to the public hearing, had gone to press (page 9).

The 48-hour limit is actually an amendment to the ordinance. The original provision was 12 hours of daylight, or 24 full hours, whichever is longer, but after an extensive debate in which Committeemen Thomas P. Cook, William Marvel and Maurice Healy upheld 48 hours and Mayor Fairman, Committeeman John S. Mount and Mr. Nini urged the original hours, the 48-hour provision was voted in—unanimously.

Public hearings on both ordinances will be held November 20.

Dogs. The proposed dog ordinance got an interim report from Mr. Cook, in which he said that he and Borough Councilman William Walker agreed on several provisions to strengthen current Borough and Township legislation.

These provisions would empower a dog catcher to sweep up all dogs on a school yard and impound them with a commercial veterinarian or kennel, impound unlicensed dogs roaming at large; eliminate the "written complaint" provision of the current ordinance, and require all dog owners to keep their pets off the streets during hours when children are going and coming from school.

Committeemen generally agreed that the last provision would be impossible to enforce. A stiff argument developed between the total advocates (Committeeman John Mount and, to a lesser degree, Mr. Healy) and the other three Committeemen, all of whom favor less stringent means of control at first. Finally Mr. Cook was instructed to return to the Borough for more discussion.

Committee also decided unanimously to send its counsel, Gordon Griffin, to the Borough Council hearing on the First National Bank proposal to build a branch bank on Riverside, but the action was nullified by the bank's subsequent decision to withdraw its case.

The Appelate Division of Superior Court has granted Tenacre Foundation the right to obtain from the Township a $1,818.54 rebate in taxes on the house in which the Tenacre director lives. Committee decided Monday night not to ask the state Supreme Court to review the decision.

In a similar case involving the Institute for Advanced Study, the Township also lost, but the Textile Institute case, the Township won. "We're batting .333," observed Mayor Fairman.

APPEAL FILED

In Permit Case. The Borough Zoning Board has appealed a State Superior Court decision reversing its denial of a special permit to permit construction of a gas station at the corner of Witherspoon and Hulfish Streets.

No decision on the appeal is expected until January at teh earliest. The appeal was filed by a Red Bank law firm to avoid possible conflict-of-interest findings.

The Zoning Board voted to appeal the Superior Court decision on October 5. Attorneys for Burnett Griggs, who sought the original variance, challenge the legality of the vote on the grounds of conflict-of-interest.

John Hurley of 14 Spring Street, who lives within 200 feet of the property in question, voted in favor of appeal. His was the third vote in favor. Two votes were cast against appeal.

Mr. Hurley abstained from voting on the original variance request. Peter Bacsik, assistant Borough Attorney, advised Mr. Hurley that he could legally vote on the decision to appeal although he had had to abstain when deciding on the merits of the case. David Deitz, attorney for Mr. Griggs, argued that Mr. Hurley should have abstained on the second vote also.

WARD APPOINTED

To Hospital Board. Laureance C. Ward, Jr., 8 Lafayette Road West, has been appointed to the unexpired term of J. Forster Abeel on the Board of Trustees of Princeton Hospital. Mr. Abeel resigned because of the pressure of business affairs. He term will expire in 1962.

Mr. Ward has been vice-president of finance for the American Radiator and Standard Sanitary Corporation since 1957 and was elected a director of the firm in 1960. He joined American Standard in 1954 as assistant treasurer and was elected treasurer the following year.

A graduate of Lawrenceville School and of Princeton University with the class of 1931, he has been active in University affairs.

SCHOOL CENSUS PLANNED

In Lawrence Township. A house-to-house census of school age and pre-school children in Lawrence Township is being planned by members of the Lawrence Township school board and school administrators. The census will be taken between this Thurday and November 18.

School officials recently met with Dr. W. Donald Walling, Director of the Division of Field Studies and Research at Rutgers University, who stated that "an accurate census is essential in developing an accurate forecast of future school enrollments." Also attending were Mrs. Joseph Mahan, Mrs. J. R. Domanski, Mrs. Floyd K. Steinouer, Mrs. Warren Taylor, Mrs. Slyvan Forman, Carl Lindgren, who represented Parent-Teacher Associations in the Township, and Mrs. Harry Levis of the Colonial Lakelands-Lakedale Ladies Group.

The planning group hopes to recruit captains and some 100 volunteer census takers to cover each of 12 areas to be surveyed. Anyone who wishes to volunteer should call the Superintendent's office at TU 2-0295, James H. Smith, Jr., president of the Board of Education, and Fred H. Combs, Jr., Superintendent of Schools, request the cooperation of each Township family. The questions are not of a personal nature, they report.

TRUMAN COMES HERE

Visits With Governor. "What do you mean, 'Get back into politics'?" asked former President Harry S. Truman of a reporter who inquired whether he had any ambitions in that line. "I've never been out of politics."

President Truman made the comment Friday in the course of a brief visit with Governor Robert B. Meyner at "Morven." The former President came to New Jersey to participate briefly in state political activity and to lend his presence to a "Governor's Ball" in Newark Friday night.

Arriving at "Morven" in mid-afternoon, Mr. Truman chatted with reporters and told them he believed firmly that the United States should resume atmospheric testing of bombs. "Should have done it long ago," he stated. "We ought to realize we're dealing with crooks when we're dealing with the Russians." He also urged expansion of the peaceful uses of atomic energy.

"I am not familiar with New Jersey politics," he said, in reply to a question about the chances of Democratic candidate Richard J. Hughes, "but I have been told that he has an excellent chance to win, and I am sure that he will."

OWEN HEALY WINS

In Lawrence Township. Owen R. Healy reversed the Republican trend that had been reflected at the Lawrence Township polls last year, winning on Tuesday by 269 votes.

He received a total of 3049 to 2780 for his Republican opponent, Carl R. Kreger. Had the G.O.P. candidate won, the

News Of The THEATRES

"OUR TOWN" OPENS

Third Production. For the third offering of the fall season, the McCarter company has staged a fine and deeply moving production of Thornton Wilder's "Our Town," a play that was born on the McCarter stage 23 years ago and has since established itself as a classic of the contemporary American theatre.

As surely as everyone must know by now, it is a play directed at the imagination of the audience, without the usual clutter of scenery and props to obscure the structure of plot and characterization. It is both narrated and acted, with a Stage Manager who is not only God and a Greek Chorus but also a bit player as well, filling in as soda jerk and pastor as the need requires.

Richard Dysart has assumed the role of the Manager for this production. When the house lights go down and he begins to speak, leaning against the proscenium with his hands in his pockets, he strikes a midly jarring note because he doesn't look like the lanky, middle-aged New Hampshire stereotype one has seen before in "Our Town."

He has black waving hair, he is young and he is on the plump side. But he can talk. And if you shut your eyes and listen to the cadence of his New England speech for a while to ease yourself in, so to speak, you'll find that by Act Two, you have accepted him as the most authentic New Englander of the lot.

Jane McArthur Shines. Next to Dysart stands Jane McArthur, who plays a luminous Emily Webb, as beguiling and full of spirit in pony tail as she is later in a matronly bun. Miss McArthur is superbly cast in the role (she played Emily two years ago in an off-Broadway production of "Our Town"), with a gamin face and figure, a ringing young voice and enough stage presence to dominate the proceedings whenever she has lines to speak.

As her beau, Jon Cypher forgets the medieval warrior of "Saint Joan" and the flexing gladiator of "Androcles" to become a 16-year-old New Hampshire school boy who can't quite get his algebra, and a terrified young groom quaking before the altar. He is even credible as the 16-year-old, which is certainly asking a great deal of a mature young actor.

In other roles, Gretchen Kanne and Anne Gee as the two mothers, busy with fire and pot and garden; Al Corbin as the bitter, drunken church organist; Ramon Bieri as the town doctor and Jack Dodson as the town publisher carry themselves with assurance.

All these actors are, of course, plagued by that bare stage without scenery (a few chairs, two stepladders) and without props. The finest voice in the world can go sailing up into the high, back reaches of the cavernous McCarter stage because there is nothing there to stop it, and the ablest young actor can be lost without a prop in his hand.

The present cast, however, handles these vexities with ease and competence. Voices do project out into the audience (thanks in part, of course, to the skillful direction of Milton Lyon) and actors act without props (particularly Miss Kanne and Miss Gee) as though they had worked in pantomime all their lives. The soda-sipping scene, as directed by Mr. Lyon and mimed by Mr. Cypher and Miss McArthur is an enchanting hit of theatre.

In its spare, New England way, "Our Town" is a touching play, and it is to Mr. Lyons credit that he has directed it without the sentimental touch that could drown it in bathos. The final scenes of Emily's return to her girlhood home are moving and poignant, executed with just enough anguish to give depth to the moment. It is a memorable ending to a production which will remain in the memories of those who see it.

On view at McCarter in the lobbies are several pieces of sculpture from the studio of Agnes Yarnall. In the exhibition are portrait heads of such theatre personalities as Judith Anderson, Alla Nazimova, John Gielgud and an assortment of clowns. Edna St. Vincent Millay and Carl Sandburg are also represented in the group.

Miss Yarnall's work is strong and graphic, still retaining in its texture the broad strokes of thumb and knife as they work over the wet clay. Her head of Carl Sandburg is particularly evocative of the strength and the planes of the poet's face.

THREE IN ONE COMING

Another Wilder Evening. Three short plays by Thornton Wilder will follow the playwright's "Our Town" on the boards at McCarter Theatre. The three will open this Friday at 8:30, and thereafter will share the McCarter repertory with "Our Town" until November 18.

The three offerings are "The Happy Journey to Camden and Trenton," "The Long Christmas Dinner" and "Pullman Car 'Hiawatha'." In the "Our Town" tradition of asking the audience "really to make believe," "Happy Journey" uses four kitchen chairs to represent an automobile in which the family travels 70 miles in 20 minutes.

"In Christmas Dinner," not one meal, but 90 years go by. Again in "Hiawatha," chairs serve as berths and the words of the Stage Manager point out what the train is passing on its journey through the Ohio countryside.

IT'S "CHARLEY'S AUNT!"

Intime Production. "Charley's Aunt," a play almost as classic as "Hamlet" itself, will be produced this fall under the aegis of the University's Theatre Intime. The farce will be given in Murray Theatre on campus at 8:30 p.m. November 16, 17, 18 and again on November 20, 21, 24 and 25. Reservations may be made by calling the theatre at WA 1-6600, extension 2010.

Ralph O. Esmerian, president of Intime, will direct the Brendan Thomas play, and Colin Hill, Princeton junior, will be seen as Lord Fancourt Babberly.

Other members of the cast are Thomas Wright, John Atkinson, David Cain, Frank Carr, Thomas Dillingham, Mary Kerney, Karen Olesen, Eleanor Groff and Susan Lerner. Shirley Rennie and Mrs. Corson Cunningham have designed the costumes, Ralph Bennett the sets and George Blanchard the lighting.

CONFERENCE COMING

On the Performing Arts. Speakers drawn from the professional staff at McCarter Theatre and from McCarter Guild will participate in a state-wide conference on the Performing Arts to be held in McCarter next Saturday, November 18, starting at 3:30 and concluding with a performance of "Our Town" in the evening.

Clubs, drama groups, educators and professionals will come to Princeton to attend clinics on "Play Selection and Direction," "Lighting and Stage Management," "Shoestring Promotion," and "The Performing Arts in Your Community."

The featured speaker will be Dr. Alan Downer, professor of drama at Princeton and a former actor in the professional theatre. Other speakers will be Milton Lyon, Arthur Lithgow, Brooks Jones, Gilbert Hemsley and Rod McManigal of the McCarter production staff.

The program will begin with registration at 3 in the McCarter Lobby and a general meeting at 3:30, followed by the clinic sessions. Tea will be served at 5 in the Ballet Room and there will be a tour of the theatre at 5:30, including visits to the scene shop, costume room, property room and backstage.

Registration for the day, including dinner in Princeton and final performance of "Our Town" will be $5. For those who attend the afternoon sessions only, the charge will be $1. There is no limit to the number of persons who may attend from any one organization, but groups that are interested have been asked to write "Day in Princeton," Box 526, Princeton, indicating the approximate number expected to attend.

"Triangle" Set

"Tour de Farce" is the title chosen by high-stepping members of Princeton University's Triangle Club for their 1961 production—the 70th which the club has mounted.

This year's show, with a $52,000 budget, will be a revue featuring 20 musical numbers larded with pantomime, dialogue, and not even a pretense of plot, according to the club president.

Highlights will be a take-off on a "Broadway Melody" Hollywood musical of the late 20's, a spoof of pre-World War I burlesque, a satire on teen-age starlets and a "downbeat updating of Chicken Little." Tour de Farce" will also take a quick look at the international situation.

The musical will open in McCarter Theatre December 7, heading west December 19 after visits to New Haven and Washington.

PLANNED FOR CHILDREN

Mime Show at Thanksgiving. A program of pantomimes and skits especially designed for children will be presented the Friday after Thanksgiving, November 24 at 3:30 in McCarter Theatre.

Lionel Shepard, the artist, is the producer of "The Mime and Me," first performed at the Hungry i in San Francisco, and later successfully shown off-Broadway at the Grammercy Arts Theatre. For the McCarter production, Mr. Shepard will employ the folksinger Jimmy Gavin to narrate the stories which Shepard and his partner "Sykes" perform.

The program will include nonsense based on Lewis Carroll and James Thurber, traditional "bill poster" pantomimes and a series of other mimed dramas and skits.

Tickets are $1 and 75c for children and $1.50 for adults. They may be obtained by writing Box 526 or calling WA 1-8700.

THE PLAYHOUSE

The Hustler (November 8-14) is an admirable exercise in the art of acting. The four main stars are called upon to make an unreal world, that of the pool-room and skid row, alive and believeable. The story is powerful tragedy, which ends in a horrible waste.

Paul Newman is credible and effective as the "hustler," a pool shark who makes his living gambling on his ability. Piper Laurie, returning to movies after several years, proves herself a dramatic actress of note, playing Newman's girl friend. Jackie Gleason is subdued and magnificent at Minnesota Fats, a legendary pool player, and George C. Scott, who can steal a scene from anyone (remember him as the prosecutor in "Anatomy of a Murder"), is the malignant incarnation of evil as Newman's promoter.

The story is a sordid one, set in a sordid world, and is necessarily brutal. Censor problems over two scenes were resolved by leaving them in, and the result is an incredibly realistic film. Robert Rossen produced and directed with a sure hand which has resulted in a tight, tense drama which doesn't seem as long as it is. Rating: a strange side of life, brilliantly presented.

LIGHT HOUSE

Heat and Light on Tulane. The ceiling you see as you peer through the window at 20 Tulane Street is not pendant with stalactites, whatever you may think. Those are display chandeliers, hung there to entice you into the shop and suspended in such a way that they can be plucked from their moorings and sold to you right now, if this is your desire.

Johnson's Electrical Showroom is, in fact, equipped to provide you with anything in electricity except the current. Look at these chandeliers, for example. (They are hung between movable ceiling panels, which makes them easy to remove.) Among the hundred or so designs you will find an antiqued French model in grey-white and gold, fashioned with five little electric candles and a cluster of curving metal flowers growing up from the center.

For those who like modern, there is a drop chandelier in the Seandinavian manner with three frosted glass shades hanging at different lengths from a trident ceiling base. Princeton being Princeton, there are many Colonial lamp designs, including one with cranberry glass at the bottom of five little fluted white shades, and a graceful, formal chandelier of antiqued brass with S-shaped brackets to hold the sturdy candle sticks.

One of the most unusual is a brassbound, tulip shaped glass cage enclosing three small candles. Another unusual one is a kerosene lamp in modern pull-down style, made of black wrought iron with a white glass shade and a spray of pink azaleas.

Coming down from the ceiling for a moment, we find a barn full of carriage lamps, some bound in white, others in conventional black, some big enough to light the side of a house, others small enough for a cottage entrance. A modern one is made of horizontal plates of aluminum to catch the reflection of the light.

Up higher, you'll find those post-lights that are so useful in driveways. Johnson's Electrical Showroom has them in redwood or black, and some of the black ones are painted aluminum.

Other lamps include shining brass scissors wall lamps (or, accordion, if you prefer that term), a pull-down lamp with solid brass shade and fittings, bathroom fixtures in pairs, singles or fluorescent tubes and pole lamps, some with a convenient little table in the middle.

Electricity isn't all light, and there's plenty to keep you warm in the new shop. Proudest item of display is Electromode's heater group, a collections that starts off with baseboard units that can fit in a 32 inch wall space, or line up to cover 96 inches. These are tremendously useful if you build an addition to your house and can't quite arrange your present heating system to take care of the new rooms. Use them for a new garage apartment, too, or in a room that's just too big to heat.

Some models are rectangles that can be recessed into the wall (wonderful for a big, old-fashioned bathroom), others are portable. All provide automatically controlled, fast heat. The price structure is complex, based on size and model, so you'd better have a look for yourself.

On the small appliance shelf, The Showroom has heating pads and frying pans, bottle sterilizers and can openers, hair dryers and blendors, General Electric clocks and clock radios.

A LION FOR LEATHER

New Hope's Waiting. At 22 Perry Street in New Hope is a leather and antique shop called The Lion Shop, which is just the right distaoce for a ride on a warm fall day.

Within the tiny shop, you will find the suavest collection of leather goods you can imagine, designed with flawless taste aand executed with impeeeable craftsmanship. You may waver a minute at the prices, but don't you know fine leather lasts forever?

A deep, matte shade called Testa-Negro makes a cowhide look like a profound greyed walnut and it's the subtlest and most dramatic shade you've seen in leather in some time. Lion has it in a suitease ($91 20), travel bag; overnight bag ($153) with outside pouch for flat, zipped briefcase; attache ease; and a woman's handbag which is nothing but the pure leather, without gimmick, fuss or ornamentation of any kind.

The shoppers and browsers we met were particularly interested in the table of smaller leather pieces, objects like little notebooks and purses that you can't resist stroking and rubbing, purely for the sensuous feel of the fine leather. Look at the little six-hole purse notebook, all of five inches long, made of red leather that has been left absolutely plain. No gold, no

Chess, Checkers, Racing

Any game you want to play, probably including post-office, was incorporated into a 19th century game box now at the Lion Shop in New Hope. The compact box, made of a highly polished burled wood, contains a leather chess-checker board which folds out to reveal, on its back, an oval track for a horse-race game. There are chessmen, checkers and a fragile stable of jockeys and horses neatly arranged in partitioned stalls and trays.

Then, there's a brass cribbage board, two shakers for dice and a handful of dice to shake in them, decks of cards for Beziquc and a set of warm old ivory dominoes. All of these accoutrements are revealed one after the other as you open one little door and then the second, lift out the first tray and the one beneath, pull down the lining of the lid and finally peer into the very depths of the little chest. The games and their pieces have the lovely patina of use, but they are complete.

Mr. Mueller has announced that the level of the group will be kept high, but that amateurs should not hesitate to try out since the orchestra is beginning at a modest level Strings and bassoons are particularly needed, according to Mr. Mueller.

Back Street (November 15-21) is the kind of emotional drivel that Hollywood keeps turning out to replace the afternoon radio soap operas. This picture is the second and most inferior re-make of Fannie Hurst's novel, and is cast in the same tear-flowing vein of "Imitation of Life," two years ago.

John Gavin immaturely plays the role of the business executive who carries on an illicit love affair with Susan Hayward. The part was previously acted by John Boles and Charles Boyer, which should give indication of the 1961 film's value. At the end, both Gavin and his wife, Vera Miles, die in an overemotional scene, filled with pathos, sadness and pure malarkey.

THE GARDEN

Exodus (November 8 - November 11) runs three hours, thirty-three and one-half minutes. The intermission adds 15 more. We had the feeling that maybe it would have been easier to stay at home and read the 600-page novel by Leon Uris.

The story comes in two parts: first the escape of thousands of post-World War II Jewish refugees from a British prison camp on Cyprus, followed by their fight to establish the state of Israel over the protests of the British and the Arabs. A mass hunger strike solves the first problem while two solutions, one peaceful and one violent, are proposed for the second, as yet unsolved.

Paul Newman heads a competent cast as Ari Ben Canaan, leader of the Jewish underground organization. Eva Marie Saint plays an American nurse, in love with Newman, who is caught up in the struggle for liberty. Others in the cast include Lee J Cobb, John Derek, Peter Lawford and Jill Haworth. Sal Mineo is surprisingly effective as a bitter young rebel.

Otto Preminger produced and directed the movie, which was filmed in Israel in color and wide screen The story is sometimes moving, sometimes filled with action, but often too "preachy." Rating longest of the long.

Frantic (November 12-18) is another "New Wave" film produced, directed and partially written by Louis Malle, who gave us "The Lovers" last year. This film, an involved murder mystery, was actually made several years ago and is obviously being released now only to cash in on the notoriety of "The Lovers."

The plot is about as involved as possible in 90 minutes. A man kills the husband of his mistress in a perfect crime, except that he gets trapped in an elevator and spends the rest of the picture trying to get out. Meanwhile two teenagers steal his car and kill two German tourists, thus sending the police after the first killer, but for the wrong crime.

Somehow, the story just doesn't come off. The involved plot doesn't help, and the characters are very unsympathetic. The camera work is sometimes unusual, however, and jazz fans may appreciate the score composed and conducted by Miles Davis. Rating frantic, indeed.

Report from THE MAYOR

Special Meeting. As previously announced, Mayor and Council will hold a special meeting on Thursday, November 9, at 8 p.m. in Borough Hall for the purpose of conducting a public hearing on the matter of the proposed bank branch on Nassau Street. The matter was referred to Council by the Zoning Board and the governing body may accept or reject, but not modify or amend, the recommendation of the Zoning Board.

The regular November meeting of Mayor and Council will be held on Monday, November 13th, at 8 p.m. in Borough Hall. The schedule was moved up from the usual Tuesday so that Borough staff and members of the governing body might attend the worthwhile meetings of the League of Municipalities in Atlantic City which begin next Tuesday.

On Safety. The Mayor attended the regular meeting of the Borough Traffic Safety Committee last Monday. Major item of business was the scheduling of final work on the school bicycle and pedestrian routes.

Chairman Tams has called a special meeting of the representatives of the various schools in Princeton to work out the safest possible routes. It is hoped that the subcommittee recommendations will be ready for the meeting of the whole committee on November 28.

Bayard and Avalon. The safety committee also discussed its continuing concern about the Bayard-Avalon intersection. The State Highway Department is still of the opinion that traffic volume does not warrant traffic signals at that location.

They concede that the relocation of Jackson Street will "justify" such a proposal. Meanwhile, Mayor and Council have suggested that the Borough Clerk sound out the possibility that the state might allow the Borough to proceed with the signals at Borough expense.

Town and Gown. The Mayor met last Monday with Mr. Charles Muldaur, Princeton University's "ambassador" on matters dealing with various units of government. Mr. Muldaur has just completed his first year in this important assignment; and he has earned the respect of all those who have had the pleasure of working with him.

High on our informal "agenda" of mutual town-gown interests was, of course the route 206A bypass. Also the meeting gave the Mayor a chance to pass on to the University officialdom the thanks of the community for the very special ways in which they have helped with our foreign visitor programs.

Many letter and messages to the Mayor attest to the warmth of the greeting these visitors have received in Princeton; and the community has in the past year or so made increasing use of University facilities for public meetings in connection with UN activities.

A Planning Schedule. Last Tuesday's meeting of the Planning Board brought the members together with the citizens advisory committee and our planning consultant, Francis Dodd McHugh. Various subcommittees of the board have been meeting with members of the advisory group to review the proposals and recommendations of the consultant on the master plan. Now a schedule is being developed for a methodical review of each phase of the master planning process and for public hearings at appropriate stops along the way. This is important work that will help to shape the future of Princeton; and the board and the advisory group are taking it most seriously.

"Tell It To The Mayor!" The regular weekly open house sessions will be held on Friday, November 10, and on Friday, November 17, from 7 to 10 p.m.

"Secret" Shelters Opposed.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Recently there have been advertisements in the Princeton papers for fallout shelters to be built "quietly," over the week-end. These advertisments apparently anticipate a demand for secret shelters, presumably so that one will not be besieged by neighbors in the event of atomic disaster.

This is the mentality that leads to talk of guns to shoot the invading neighbors, and so forth It is immoral and self-defeating.

Anyone who thinks shelters are needed, and who wants to build one for his family, can protect his position and justify it only by doing his best to see that everyone else has a shelter too. This effort can take various forms, but once the demand to be concerned for one's neighbor is recognized, one must face the old question: "Who is my neighbor?"

There are immediate neighbors and more distant neighbors, but there are no real boundaries. If shelters are needed, and I think they are, they make sense only in a context that includes community, town, state, and national programs, and extends even to international programs to promote peace and make shelters unnecessary.

Some advertisers offer "the sand bag method" or other methods "approved by O.C.D." Recent discussions in Congress have emphasized that the Office of Civil Defense does not "approve" shelters, though it provides literature describing shelters giving various degrees of protection under various possible conditions; and of course no shelter gives absolute protection The State of New York is considering legal standards for shelters with penalties for contractors who do not meet them; this might be considered in New Jersey.

I hope that the public will not respond to appeals for secret shelters. Whatever we do, let us do it openly and together. Any other approach will be both immoral and ineffective.

Approves of Article on Dogs.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

I should like to commend you for the timely and informative article in your October 26 issue concerning the dog problem in Princeton Township.

I fully agree with the view expressed by the Township Administrator, Mr. Nini, and others with whom I have discussed this problem, that a "total restraint" dog ordinance is required. The present ordinance is, to all practical purposes, unenforceable. The reasons, in addition to those given by Mr. Cook (Thomas P. Cook, Township Committeeman), include the cumbersome procedure required to register a complaint, the difficulty of legally identifying the dog complained of, the difficulty of proving that the dog's acts fall within the loose definitions in the ordinance, the very small fine involved, and so on.

I can speak with some authority on the subject as I attempted to enforce the ordinance about a year ago. At that time, the Township Attorney stated that the case was the only one which had been brought in an attempt to enforce the ordinance.

The article indicates that the Township Committee has been considering the dog problem for more than a year. May I suggest that action is now due. The Township Committee should face its responsibilities and enact a stiff dog ordinance—now.

Alternatively, the petition presented asking for a referendum should be granted. In this last connection, I disagree with Mr. Cook. I believe a "total restraint" ordinance, if put to a popular vote, would pass easily.

I have written to the Township Committee expressing my views. Perhaps if a sufficient number of others would also write, the Committee would become more aware of the seriousness of the problem and the need for a prompt solution.

And More On Dogs.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Since dogs are being discussed, let us tell of an agreeable episode which happened recently. Nor far, up the street, a dog apparently well-chained, did not cease barking steadily for more than an hour at a time.

We called the police. The reply was that a patrol car would be there promptly, and "if there is anything else we can do, call us." The car did come and the dog has not again tormented the neighbors.

Most people when harassed by barking, continue to postpone doing anything about it because "we don't want an enemy next door." They do not realize that the dog owner never knows who makes the complaint. For many people, continued barking is a nerve-wracking sound as much or more to be controlled than a wandering dog.

Some weeks ago, we spent considerable time in Princeton Hospital. To one in pain or discomfort and often sleepless, there is added to the nerve strain the yapping of a dog, especially vocal at night, directly opposite the Hospital, and there are other offenders not far away.

tooling, just the sleekness of the warm, red cover. ($6.19) Other notebooks are larger, wider, longer, narrower—in fact, every shape you can think of. We examined, in particular, a long, narrow, thick desk memo pad with a ribbon of brass piano hinges just off-center on the cover, instead of ranged conventionally up the spine.

A suede jewel case pulls out like an accordion, each fold zipped, and quietly collapses again, ready to be fastened with a narrow belt around the middle It's grey, red or brown. Many other leather pieces are sheared, skivered and then overprinted with stripes and dots that look almost like a leopard, almost like a—well, you can't quite identify the animal, but it's obviously real fur. Obviously. It's just the printing that's pretend.

One of our favorites is the innocent looking little overnight bag which isn't a bag at all, put a padded stool. Unzip the edge and pull down four chrome legs. And while you're waiting on that stool, maybe you can find three more and have a round of bridge. The shop has a six or twelve-deck leather bridge case with slim gold pencils, score pads and a tool of gold around the bright red leather.

SHIBUI

At Gene Seal. The Japanese word "Shibui" has been taken over by modern decorators and used to describe objects which are subtle and understated in color and shape. Gene Seal, the florist at 200 Nassau, has a new collection of "Shibui" vases, bowls and pottery pieces, made in Japan by artisans who used old forms for their models.

These pieces are earth brown and tan, combining in an unusual way the sophisticated which is a component of "shibui" design, and the naivete of earthenware pottery. Some of the pieces have unobtrusive striations or informal designs. Some are gently shaped, like the ten-inch vase that is shaped like a triangle, but so softly rounded that you may think it is round at first

There is an absurd squat teapot with a pelican's pouring lip, like the ones given out to passengers on Japanese trains. There is a jug with a flaring mouth and a tall pitcher, which is one of the few pieces with glaze.

Gene Seal also has wooden objects, more conventional in line and color but still soft and understated. A classic lidded wooden bowl of zelkoba wood has a striking grain pattern: a handle-less jug has been made like a cylinder with a tight girdle of brown ribbing pulling it in at the center so that your hand can grasp around.

Totally different in every way is a group of Swedish milk glass pieces made of pure white glass planed down from the usual fussiness of old-fashioned milk glass. These pieces are regularly fluted like shells, or marked with faint brick patterns, or spiked with tear-drop hobnails. You may choose from straight or flaring vases, nested with a curving, petal edge, or pedestal vases.

In an American pottery group, the shop has smooth faced charcoal or oyster white bowls, vases and containers, many of them with a Japanese derivation, like the oblong ones that resemble a hibachi.

nearby communities with information on the effects of nuclear warfare, and second, it plans to help municipal officials with a program for defense against nuclear attack

In these efforts, the Chamber's committees on Governmental Affairs and Public Relations are working with Captain Geoffrey E. Sage, director of Civid Defense and Disaster Control, and with Edward Sundstrom, Hunterdon County Civilian Defense official.

Both Captain Sage and Mr Sundstrom spoke to a recent meeting of the Chamber's committee on Public Relations

APARTMENTS TABLED

In West Windsor. The proposal of C. Lawrence Dey to construct 176 garden apartment units on 48 acres of land between the Cranbury and Hightstown Roads in Princetnn Junction was tabled by the West Windsor Zoning Board after a two-hour, standing-room-only hearing Thursday night.

As a prelude to the hearing, Charles L. Rue, Jr., chairman of the Board, read to the audience a memorandum from the Planning Board reminding Zoning that multiple housing in the Township is still under study, and asking that this be considered in deciding on the case

Questions of water sewage, traffic and taxes were raised. Mr Dey has a water-line right of way for irrigation purposes across the property of Kenneth Lipscomb, Cranbury Road, and Mr Lipscomb questioned Mr Dey's right to change the use of this from its original purpose of drawing water out of Bear Brook, to the new purpose of providing a sewage disposal avenue for the new project

Mr. Dey plans to build a sewage processing unit on the property, allowing effluent to flow into Bear Brook. Mr. Lipscomb and other property-owners are concerned about the effect this would have on the brook.

William Stuart, Cranbury Road, suggested that the Board would be lending public support to a private interest by granting permission to Mr. Dey, because the proposed Route 95 appears on maps as going across the Dey property, which would, Mr Stuart suggested, rise sharply in value if apartments were built on it

Mrs. Willard Hunt, Penn Lyle Road, questioned the need in the Township for 176 units, citing the recent approval to Princeton Recreation Center for 150 units.

In reply to a question about the number of school children who might move into the new project, Mr. Dey said that there would be fewer children in one-and-two-bedroom garden apartments than there would be in single-family dwellings. He estimated one-half child per family, opposing the figure of one and one-half to two children per single family dwelling

AGENDA ANNOUNCED

For Council Meeting. An amendment to increase the area of the Nassau East parking project will be introduced at Borough Council meeting next Monday at 8 p.m. in Borough Hall. The amendment will be to the ordinance which originally authorized action on the parking project.

Question of the Week

Question: Do you believe that behind every successful man there's a woman?

Where asked: Palmer Square

Mrs. Russell Edmonds, Province Line Road, housewife: Not necessarily. I think if a man has it in his mind to achieve success, he'll do it without any prodding from a woman. Of course, if he's married, he has family responsibilities that might deter him from taking chances and he'll be much more cautious. Statistics show most men are married and therefore there are more successful married men than unmarried.

Mrs. Jonathan Beckwith, 36 Bank Street, housewife: Definitely not. A woman supplies a man's emotional needs but his ambition to succeed surely comes from something more deeper and idealistic than just his emotions.

Donald Erickson, Princeton Theological Seminary, student: No, not so much in my society in Australia anyway. This is purely relative. It may be true for that man and this man, perhaps, but not for every man.

Gerrit H. Cortelyou, Somerville, shelver at Firestone Library: Yes, I think a woman helps a man sustain his initiative and gives him a lot of moral support. That is, most of the time.

Jack Cray, 61 Fisher Avenue, school crossing guard: There's not only one—there are a dozen women behind every successful man'

Kenneth Applegate, Bennett Place, Hightstown, cement finisher: No, there are plenty of bachelors who are highly successful.

Miss Shirley Rennie, Laurel Avenue, Kingston, registered nurse: I'd say yes. It's old and trite but history seems to bear it out. It may not be by his wife but usually it's some woman. There's the Duke of Wellington and many others in history, who were successful men, who always had a woman helping them in the background.

Miss Alice Ann Wolff, 112 Windsor, Hightstown, secretary: No. I don't really think so But I think in most cases it would be hard to be successful without the help of a woman

William Waits, Princeton Theological Seminary, student: No, there's no reason to believe that As I understand it, Dag Hammarskjold and a number of other men were successful without being married or having any support from a woman At the same time, I think a woman would be helpful in most cases.

Mrs. John S. Gallager, Jr., 127 Moore Street, housewife: Not necessarily. A lot of men who were considerably successful—Abraham Lincoln, for instance—did not have a happy marriage. I think many men are successful in spite of rather than because of women

Bruce Hopping, 55 Palmer Square, Chairman of N. J. Committee, Inc. a non-profit organization. No, because I think it is up to a man to set his own course. If he is well enough grounded in his perogatives, he doesn't need a woman, religion, or anything.

Miss Eyvor Persson, 14 Southern Way, domestic: No, man is still better than a woman. A man doesn't need a woman because he is usually much smarter in business affairs to begin with. A woman may help in some ways, certainly, but she would not be the deciding factor in a man's success. It's up to a man to be a success is the way we feel about it in Sweden.

Van Skillman, 52 Harriet Drive, painting contractor: There has to be. Not too far behind, either. I say this from experience.

Mrs. Blanche Faison, Levittown, Pa., secretary for RCA: Indubitably.

Robert Sinkler, 307 Witherspoon Street, athletic trainer: I agree with that. It's a historical fact that a woman centers a man and gives him balance. A woman becomes another facet of his thinking and helps him in rounding out decisions. I feel in any profession it is a good idea for a man to talk things over with a woman. The woman who gives a man balance could be his wife, his secretary or any woman.

Mrs. Barbara Kramarz, Lakedale Drive, Trenton, secretary for RCA: DEFINITELY. A woman has a lot of push behind her. Men are lazy and need a push once in awhile. A woman is more prone to be ambitious in an idealistic way.

Anthony J. Ferrara, 24 Markman Road, carpenter: They're instrumental but I don't think it's true in every case. A man that is successful, I would say, owes at least 60 percent of his success to himself. When he goes out to meet the public, he has to depend on himself.

Mrs. Rocco A. Vendetti, 252 Mt. Lucas Road, housewife: Yes, in most cases, because I think a woman tries to plan her life ahead along with the man she is most closely associated with and I feel this tends to make a man work harder to fulfill these plans.

Question Of The Week

Square, assistant for Van Note-Harvey Associates: Sure I believe there should be a woman behind every man, successful or not I know I would want to have a woman behind me.

Mrs. Murray Garber, 6 Tower Place, Lawrence Township, housewife: It's not 100 percent true, but a woman helps. If a man isn't happy at home he can't do a good job at the office The man with a happy home life will be more successful than the man without one.

Charles Eure, 157 Monmouth Street, Trenton, mail clerk for Gallup and Robinson: Yes, I do. I feel there is an empty space in a man which only a woman can fill with her understanding and moral support. It isn't any professional or technical aid that a woman may give that makes a man a success; it is the support she gives in helping him over the rough spots.

Miss Betty Ferrara, 47 Jefferson Road, secretary: I think every man needs a woman but it must be a good woman or she can do more harm than Good. For example, my mother has been a tremendous help to my father in his career and in their private lives. He most certainly could and would be successful without her, but she offers him a great deal in the way of happiness And what good is success without happiness? A woman that can offer a man companionship, pursues his interests, is a good wife and mother, is a woman who can make his life happy and successful.

HOFSTADTER HONORED

Wins Nobel Award. Dr. Robert Hofstadter, a member of the Princeton University faculty from 1946 to 1950, is a joint recipient of the 1961 Nobel Prize in Physics.

Dr. Hofstadter, currently on the faculty of Stanford University, split the $96,000 prize with Dr. Rudolph Mossbauer of the University of Munich Dr. Hofstadter received his B.A. and M.A. degrees from Princeton

In its citation, the 140-member Swedish Royal Academy of Science stated that Dr. Hofstadter was chosen for "his pioneering studies of electron scattering in atomic nuclei and for his thereby achieved discoveries concerning the structure of nucleons."

SMITH TO SPEAK

To Historical Unit. H. Alexander Smith, U. S. Senator from New Jersey for 12 years, will be guest speaker at a meeting of the Historical Society of Princeton next Tuesday at 8:15 p.m. in the faculty lounge of Firestone Library.

Mr. Smith's topic will be "Years to Remember." He will illustrate his talk with exhibits from the collection of private papers which he has donated to Firestone Library.

TESTING TO BE TOPIC

Of PTA Discussion. "Testing—Menace or Aid to Better Schools?" is the question that will be discussed at the next meeting of the Princeton Parent-Teachers Association to be held in the social room of Princeton High School on Tuesday, November 21. A question period will follow.

Is testing a menace to education or a means to higher standards and pupil guidance? Dr. Henry Dyer and Dr. Robert Ebel, both of Educational Testing Service, will examine the fundamental nature and purpose of tests. Dr. Dyer, in charge of College Board programs, will discuss external tests and testing programs Dr. Ebel will examine the nature and quality of school-made tests.

Dr. Melvin M Tumin, Associate Professor of Sociology and Anthropology at Princeton University, will serve as chairman Dr Tumin has a great interest in the impact of social forces on education.

The rapid growth in school testing, the pressures of college admission, the demand for proof of more solid achievement and for better guidance have played a role in the cry for more testing. At the same time, there is a growing criticism of losing sight of the individual from so much testing.

SCHOOL SYSTEMS LAUDED

By Chamber of Commerce. The Greater Princeton Chamber of Commerce and Civic Council announced that it is encouraging its members to visit their neighborhood schools during American Education Week, which runs through Saturday. The week gives the business, professional and civic community of Princeton a chance to express its appreciation for the leadership and services of the Borough and Township school board members, teachers and administrators, the Chamber reported.

The chamber noted that 80 new classrooms have been added since 1951 in the two school systems. The number of teachers during the same period rose from around 130 to over 275.

"Our school board members deserve a special commendation for their continual efforts to upgrade the quality of instruction," said Frederick M Blaicher, president of the Chamber. "Today, 98 percent of our teachers and administrators have college degrees, with more than 100 of these holding advanced degrees," Mr. Blaicher added

FALL MEETING LISTED

The following day, a meeting for prospective students will be held in the Music Room of Miss Fine's School at 4. Mrs Peter Cook, chairman of the Student Committeefi has extended an invitation to any interested girl in the area to attend

WHAT'S FOR DINNER?

Evelyn Patterson Knows. In a community like Princeton where everybody, who's anybody writes a books, Mrs. Evelyn Patterson prepares some of the most palatable texts in town.

Mrs. Patterson is the author of the current, "Gourmet Kitchen," a previous volume, "Meals for Guests" and a forthcoming work, "The Beginning and the End: First Courses and Desserts." Her "Gourmet Kitchen" was tapped by Life magazine this fall as belonging on the top shelf of books in the fall collection of cookbooks.

Mrs. Patterson not only writes, she teaches as well, displaying for brides or seasoned cooks her way with a sauce and a stock. But the svelte blonde cook herself did not learn in a class.

"I learned to cook just by cooking, because I love it," she says. "We were in England not long ago for a one-month stay and I took an intensive five-day course in London at the Cordon Bleu It was the first cooking course I had ever taken, and I must say I learned a lot.

"It was truly advanced and intensive work, with a 9 a.m.-5 p.m. schedule five days in a row, and complex sauces on the curriculum—you know, the kind of thing it takes days to make, with adding and reducing, adding and reducing, desserts to decorate, quenelles and complex dishes. Absolutely wonderful.'

In the French Style. French cuisine is Mrs. Patterson's favorite, although she has collected recipes from many countries in the course of her travels with her husband, Gardner Patterson, director of the Woodrow Wilson School.

From her three years in Greece, her year in Turkey and many summers spent exploring the restaurants of western Europe, Mrs. Patterson has accumulated culinary experience and little-known recipes that more than fill her three hooks.

Of the recipes in her books, she says, "You know, nobody can truthfully claim that he invented a recipe. Some foods just go together, and have probably been used together generations. One cook, like myself, may work out a new way of combining or decorating them, that's all."

As a cook, Mrs. Patterson believes first of all that food must look well, and she tells her pupils to think in terms of a whole meal, not in terms of individual, unrelated dishes that the cook may happen to know how to make well.

Second, she believes that a cook should use what she has on hand, and be inventive with whatever is in the cupboard.

Let's Eat. Given these two promises and a professional gourmet cook in the kitchen, what does the Patterson family eat for an ordinary dinner at home?

"I cook for the family as I would cook for guests," Mrs. Patterson says: "For example, last night we had chicken breasts flamed with brandy and glazed with madeira and heavy cream, rice pilaf, green beans, tossed salad and homemade rolls. I bake all my own rolls, you know, and put them in the freezer."

For dessert, there were praline crepes served hot with a cold apricot sauce. This dessert illustrates Mrs. Patterson's second precept, because it was invented from leftovers she happened to have in her kitchen. The family and the cook found the dessert so successful that it may be included in the next Patterson cook-book.

The following night, she served veal rolls and sour cream with current jelly, small oven-browned potato balls and apple torte.

How Long? It takes the cook—when the cook is Mrs. Patterson—about an hour to SOUPCON: Or, "soup's on!" Whichever way you pronounce it, it tastes good if it comes from the kitchen of Mrs. Evelyn Patterson, Princeton's gourmet cook. Slim Mrs. Patterson and her equally slim husband always prompt the question, 'How can you cook so well and stay so thin?" She says: "If food tastes really good, you are satisfied with less." For more on the menu, see story this page. (Staff Photo) prepare the first of these two dinners. She plans all her meals in the morning and prepares the basic steps peeling and making the potato balls and placing them in ice-water to soak, for example so that dinner will be ready to cook at cooking time.

Often, she will cook in advance, freezing a dish like the apple torte to use in the future.

In class, Mrs. Patterson's pupils watch the preparation of these dishes. If "touch" is necessary, the pupil performs the step herself.

Curriculum depends on the desire of the particular class. Many a beginner has deboned a chicken and put it together with forcemeats she has made herself, or has sliced a veal roll and assembled and glazed it all alone.

"These things sound hard," the teacher-cook explains, "but actually they are not. Making a complicated sauce for a casserole is easier than poaching a filet of sole to perfection in a lemon and butter sauce."

Mrs Patterson's course consists of six two-hour sessions spread over three weeks, with classes scheduled two days in a row to allow for recipes that must stand over night.

Turnpike Ten Years Old

The 118-mile New Jersey Turnpike last Sunday, marked the tenth anniversary of its opening. The Turnpike was opened in four sections from November 5, 1951, to January 15, 1952.

In its first ten years, the Turnpike has carried more than 330 million cars, trucks and buses, transporting more than 800 million persons over 11 billion miles of travel. The latter figure is equal to 440,000 trips around the world.

An average of about 140,000 cars use the Turnpike daily. The traffic on opening day in 1951 amounted to 3,450 cars. The record, single-day volume of 204,851 vehicles was set on June 30, 1961.

Panel members will be Kathleen Kies, director of the program for gifted children of the Franklin Township school system; Mrs. Holly Hagman, director of the remedial reading program in Franklin Township schools; Mrs. Helene Parent, chairman of the department of foreign languages at Franklin High School; and Mrs. R. WE DANES—AND YOU

OUR CULTURE

Some Observations on Cultural Questions.

THE DANES display a possibly surprising conviction that they are a thoroughly civilized nation. The reasons for this must be that most of them speak foreign languages more or less badly, that many of them have read "Hamlet," that they are all endowed with an infinite curiosity (which, as we know, can lead to wisdom or to dangerous adventures), and that they each and every one love romance — whether of the Hans Christian Andersen kind or of their own making.

They feel so closely bound up with Hans Christian Andersen's fairy tales — Thorvaldsen's statues — the East Asiatic Company — the Round Tower in Copenhagen — Roskilde Cathedral — Osterlars church on the island of Bornholm—Burmeister and Wain's ships — Professor Niels Bohr — and the Viking planes that they almost believe themselves to be the creators, inventors, builders, organizers, or in some way responsible for the whole lot. They seem to be on most intimate terms with Bishop Absalon, who put Copenhagen on the map in 1167; and they really genuinely regard themselves as related to Christian IV, who turned Copenhagen into a beautiful city, and to Christian X, who reigned during the period when it transformed itself from a provincial town into one of the world's great cities —in a small way.

Then, of course, it is a matter of no small pride that among the four and a half million inhabitants of Denmark there are only two persons (some people contend there are double this number) who can neither read nor write. On the other hand, there are still two thousand Danes who have never written a book or a play or painted a picture, but this figure is steadily diminishing.

Denmark is stacked with Art, old and new. There are, for example, the Pearls of Architecture distributed evenly over the countryside. Among these Pearls are our castles and manors. Nobody can afford to live in them today, but they are attractive all the same

DAN TERPACK COULD HAVE DRIVEN A TRUCK THROUGH THIS HOLE. Princeton's fine wingback romped 15 yards through this huge gap on a reverse play in the second quarter at Providence Saturday. Evidence of solid blocking that helped Tigres to a total offense of 481 yards is shown at left and right. Touchdown was first of Terpack's varsity career as Ivy League leaders scored a 52-0 triumph. TIGERS IN DIFFICULTY

Harvard a Big Hurdle. Even if Princeton had not had the misfortune to lose Greg Riley on the eve of its important games with Harvard, Yale and Dartmouth, defeating the Crimson at Cambridge Saturday would have been a tall order. With the extremely versatile tailback sidelined because of a "green stick" fracture of the collarbone, it is doubtful that the Tigers can top a much better Harvard eleven than the Cantabs had been expected to field at the start of the season.

Hugh MacMillan, the fastest back in the Ivy League, is Riley's replacement. His running strength is to the outside, but unfortunately Harvard's defensive ability is at its best there. And unfortunately for Princeton, MacMillan is not the passer that Riley is—particularly on the short aerials that chop up a secondary. Actually, he was a wingback as a freshman and was converted to tailback this fall because of his great speed. (9.6 for the 100-yard dash.)

Another sophomore, Pete Porcitis, will also see action as a tailback Saturday. A defensive standout, he can run and pass, but not with MacMillan's speed nor with the fine blend of both that Riley showed this fall.

Behind them will be the best passer on the squad, junior Dave Ubbeken. He completed 15 of 22 in a jayvee game against Rutgers Friday and then saw a fair amount of action against Brown 24 hours later.

Connecting on three out of five, including one for a TD, Ubbeken may be a major asset against Harvard. But he is short on speed, and both MacMillan and Porcitis are scheduled to see action ahead of him.

Others Injured Are Back. If Riley had not been hurt (the injury occurred when he ran into the end zone for the first touchdown, was bumped hard and fell on the ball as he hit the ground), Princeton would be in its best shape of the season. Three players—tackle Andy Conner and fullbacks Roger Hoit and Brad Urquhart saw action Saturday and will be ready for Harvard.

Conner's return after a wrist fracture will lend weight and experience to the line. Hoit had been listed as a punting specialist only, after a pinched nerve had sidelined him at Blairstown, but he carried the ball as a fullback Saturday, bolstering the only weak spot in the Tiger backfield. Urquhart's return increases the depth there.

Harvard Defense Is Good. Impressive defensive performances in its victories over Cornell, Dartmouth and Penn have made Harvard the threat that it is to the Tigers. The Crimson blanked Cornell, 13-0, held a good Dartmouth team scoreless for three periods, eventually winning, 21-15; and last week ran over Penn, 37 to 6.

The Cantabs' top quarterback, senior Tom Halaby is expected to see action Saturday after missing the last three games with a leg injury. However, sophomore Mike Bassett has made the team move as his replacement.

Development of Bill Grana and Bill Taylor to the point where they have won starting berths in the backfield has aided Harvard's ground game materially. The Crimson is below par as a passing team (13 for 36 in four Ivy games to date) but its flanker-T offense figures to cause Princeton defensive problems on the ground most of the afternoon.

Bob Boyda and Pete Hart, a pair of 200-pound plus ends, give the Crimson good strength on the flanks. Its line will not outweigh Princeton's by much, but the rain and mud that more often than not greet the Tigers when they go to Cambridge would work heavily in favor of the home team this year. The Tigers must be able to pass and must have firm footing for the tailbacks' end runs and the wingbacks' reverses if they are to stand a chance of winning.

One Eye on Baker Field. The game to be played at New York Saturday between Columbia and Dartmouth will have a vital bearing on the outcome of the Ivy race. If the Lions win, they are a virtual certainty to top Penn the following week and close out with a 6-1 mark.

In that event, Princeton will have to win its last three to take the Ivy title, an assignment that currently seems too much for a young outfit shorn of its offensive threat. Still and all, anything approaching a share in the 1961 championship will be a tremendous achievement for a team unanimously consigned to second division in the preseason forecasts.

Should the Tigers lose, they would, of course, still be very much in the race, but triumphs over Yale and Dartmouth would then be essential to earn a tie—possibly a three-way affair with Columbia and Harvard. Off its performance against Dartmouth, Yale has a good deal more in the way of problems than the early part of the season revealed. The Elis are without a real passing threat, have no topflight running back and are weaker in the line than a good team can afford to be—particularly at end.

A Princeton victory Saturday would, of course, leave the Tigers in magnificent shape, particularly if Dartmouth should top Columbia. In that event, a split in their remaining games would assure them of at least a tie for the championship.

BROWN PULVERIZED

As Tigers Shun Let-Down. Over the years, Brown has often caught Princeton napping as it looks ahead to its Big Three action. In 1954, for example, the Tigers went to Providence and got knocked off by an underdog Bruin eleven, 21-20. Four years ago, they barely escaped with a 7-0 triumph, although good enough to go on to win the Ivy title.

Last Saturday, the Orange and Black had no time for nonsense. It rolled 66 yards in ten plays the first time it got the ball, Riley going over from six yards out on his last carry of the season.

Thereafter, it was just a question of how high the score would go, as the Bruins' fruitless offensive efforts were contained outside the Princeton 25-yard line throughout the warm afternoon and Tiger reserves had a greater field day in the second half than the regulars had enjoyed at the outset.

Princeton forced one break after another, intercepting three passes, recovering two fumbles and blocking a punt for the first time this season. All led to Tiger touchdowns in winning, 52-0, for the most decisive victory in the 70-year old series. Princeton rolled for 481 yards.

Standouts included reserve end Jim Hunter, who caught four passes, two for touchdowns and was named to the All-East team for the week, wingbacks Dan Terpack and

Jim Rockenbach, each of whom scored once from the wingback position; tailback Pete Porcitis, who scored once, passed for another and picked up a total of 104 yards running and throwing; and ends Barry Schuman and Hank Large (See "We Congratulate")

It could be that to anticipate a Harvard victory Saturday is to under-rate this young and extremely eager Princeton team. "These guys thrive on adversity," Bill Stryker, sports publicist for the Tigers, points out. "One of the big reasons they are leading the league today is because they read the preseason predictions that they weren't going any where and got mad enough to want to prove the forecasters were crazy."

The Tigers have had to play a big game twice so far this year—against Columbia and then Cornell—and each time they produced all that could be asked. If they can do it again at Cambridge Saturday—in the face of Riley's somewhat shattering loss—the season will be an unqualified success two games before it is over.

PHS MEETS HAMILTON

In Little Tiger Finale. The Princeton High School football team has ron out of opponents. All too soon, it seems, the Little Tigers will end their seven-game season Friday afternoon when they will play host to Hamilton High School at Harris Field. The game will start at 2.

The contest will also mark the farewell appearance of PHS coach Joe Jingoli who is stepping down after 16 years as head coach of the Blue and White. Joe, who plans to devote full time to his new job as Director of Athletics at Princeton High, would like nothing better than to close out his coaching career with a winning season, something the Little Tigers have not been able to do since 1956. PHS will enter the contest with a 3-3 record.

Barring a shocking upset, his wish should be fulfilled. Coach Barney Emil's eleven has found the football bouncing away from it this year, in losing six of seven games, a record which prompted Jingoli to say, "Let's hope we make it seven." The two schools did not play each other last year.

When a good offensive team meets a good defensive team, something's got to give. Saturday at Harris Field, it was the Little Tigers' offense which yielded to an inpenetrable Long Branch defense as they became the visitors' fourth shutout victim in seven games. The score was 18-0.

HENRY LARGE
Princeton End

A converted end who was good enough to be all-State in Rhode Island as a fullback said the other day, "They couldn't put me in the backfield again if they tried. I'm having too much fun blocking ever to want to be a ball carrier again."

Six feet one, 205 pounds, Hank Large has been accurately described as living up to his name. For the past five weeks, he has also been living up to the preseason predictions for him a solid bet to earn all-Ivy rating in 1961.

Princeton's crunching offense, which has averaged 364 yards and better than 30 points in its four Ivy victories to date, is impressive primarily because half a dozen backs move the ball with considerable authority. As an opposing coach put it succinctly, "Princeton has another typical team this year—they can run like hell."

If the tailbacks and the wingbacks are covering ground steadily, it's one key block after another that springs them loose. A full share of these are credited to Large, who likes his duties on the short side plays and reverses best "because my assignment calls for a check block on the line and a peel back block downfield. If you hit those big linemen just right, while they are looking the other way for the ball carrier," he reports happily, "pretty soon they are looking for you more than for the guy who's got the ball."

Although he came to Princeton with a hatful of press clippings off his play at St. George's in Newport, R I., it took Hank more than two seasons to become a solid football player here. He admits to being "short on desire" in his first two seasons, a situation complicated by a knee injury and an operation.

Full recovery was followed by his conversion to end, where he made such rapid progress last year that he was picked as the best bet for stardom this fall. A shoulder injury kept him out of the Penn and Colgate games and, although the rain and mud hampered the Tigers considerably those afternoons, it is worth noting that Princeton's poorest performances of the season came on the days that Large rode the bench.

When Hammerin' Henry returned to action against Cornell, Dick Colman commented, "His presence on the line gave the whole team a lift." Last week against Brown, he came up with the perfect play for a lineman, blocking a punt that his running mate on the other end, Barry Schoman, collared for a 23-yard touchdown jaunt.

With the season now at its climax, Princeton is a mathematical certainty for a first-division Ivy berth, and a possible league champion. One of the primary factors in the Tigers' unanticipated degree of success is the solid ability of Hank Large, a football rarity who found it more fun to block than to carry the ball.

Jingoli described coach Army Ippolito's unbeaten Green Wave as "The best ball club I've seen on this field since 1951. A team looks good in winning and Long Branch looked awfully good Saturday," added Jingoli. "They outplayed us, outcharged us, and outfought us. They did such a good job that they made us look bad."

All the scoring was done in the first half. The burly visitors served notice of what was in store for PHS when they drove down field to score in the opening minutes of the game. Quarterback Ray Reed capped the drive with a 30-yard scoring sweep around left end.

In the second period, Long Branch's standout running halfback, Randy Phillips, scored his team's other two tallies. He set up his first when he returned Tom Olsen's punt to the PHS 26. From there he got first down on the Blue and White 15 and then went the remaining distance up the middle for the six-pointer.

Phillips's econd TD came on the last play of the half and was a dazzler. After taking the pass from center, he ran to his right faking a pass, cut down the middle and then to the sidelines to score standing up. The play covered 57 yards. For the third straight time, the point-after-touchdown kick went awry.

PHS, which did not get a first-down until 55 seconds remained in the first half, reeled off two straight after taking Long Branch's second-half opening kickoff. The drive failed when Bob Boyd intercepted Don Cooper's pass on the Long Branch 19. That was as close as the losers were to get.

Throughout the game, the Green Wave line never let up, nor did the Wave ball carriers. Disdaining the air in favor of a grinding "three yards and a cloud of dust" offensive, they refused to be stopped after an initial tackle and consistently picked up an extra two or three yards. The game ended with the relentless vistors on the PHS five-yard stripe.

Jingoli's sucessor would do well to hope that Princeton High is accepted into the South Central Jersey League to which it has applied for membership. Long Branch doesn't belong.

HUN LOSES FIRST

Meets George School Next Following its first defeat of the season, the Hun School football team decided if it couldn't win all eight of its games this year, the next best thing would be to win seven. "That's what they've got their hearts set on," said Hun coach Hawley Waterman who predicted that his players would bounce back.

The tarnished but not discouraged Red and Black will try to regain its victory stride at the expense of George School. The players from Newtown, Pa. and the Johnny Huns will meet Saturday at 2:30 at Hun's home field.

Although George School will field a much improved eleven and has a new quarterback reported to be a fine passer by Waterman, Hun should win this one, Coach Bob Geissinger's team has lost all its games this year with the exception of one victory and a tie. The 14-14 tie was scored Saturday against Pennington and its lone victory the week before against Friends Central. Hun defeated both teams easily.

Four key pass interceptions, two which set up touchdowns, two which stopped Hun drives; a stubborn defense, and four costly 15-yard penalties called against its opponent enabled one-defeated Pingry to shut out Hun here Saturday. It was the first defeat for Hun in six games. The score was 12-0.

The defensive play of both schools highlighted the first three periods which were scoreless. "I may be prejudice," said Waterman, "but even though we lost I think we played an excellent game. We forced them to punt all afternoon and I'd say we had the better of it in the first half."

Late in the third quarter Hun penetrated deep into Pingry territory but the drive was blunted by a 15-yard penalty. Faced with a third and 17 situation, the home team resorted to a special pass play it had developed for the game.

In what was described by Waterman as the turning point of the game, the pass was intercepted by a Pingry defender who returned it 45 yards to the Hun 30. After three of his aerials had been knocked down, Walt Long hit George Tilden in the end zone on his last chance for a 30-yard scoring play. Then, with less than two minutes to play, Pingry iced the contest when it intercepted another Hun pass, ran it back to the Hun 15, and scored later on a naked reverse that caught the Hun defensive unit flatfooted.

Waterman had nothing but praise for his team after the hard-to-take defeat. "Our boys wanted to win so badly," he said, "that they tried a little too hard in some instances. We had those four big 15-yard penalties called against us and many smaller ones which broke up our drives. I know I wouldn't want to trade lines with them," he continued, "our boys in the line and our three linebackers were just great.

"The difference was their pass defense. They intercepted four of our passes which helped them set up their scores. We only intercepted one of theirs," added Waterman.

STREAK ENDS

Lawrenceville Beaten. Lawrenceville's football team, which last week suffered its first defeat in 27 games, will face traditional rival Hill School in a 2 p.m. home contest on Saturday.

Choate School defeated the Red and Black, 18-7, last Saturday. It was the first setback for Lawrenceville since the final game of the 1957 season when it suffered a 12-7 loss to Hill. The Larries' 26-game unbeaten string included two ties.

After Choate had taken a 6-0 lead in the first period, Brian Bruel, Lawrenceville fullback opened the second quarter by plunging for a touchdown from the six-inch line. John Bacon kicked the extra point and Lawrenceville had a 7-6 lead.

Moments later Choate halfback Bruce Malloy scored his second of three touchdowns on a five-yard blast up the middle to put Choate ahead to stay, 12-7. Lawrenceville remained frustratingly within striking distance until Malloy recorded his third touchdown of the afternoon in the last minute of play to make Choate's margin 18-7.

Meanwhile, Hill was crushing Peddie, 34-0, for its fifth win in six starts this season. Lawrenceville defeated Peddie, 27-13, on October 22.

Lawrenceville defeated Hill in the season finale last year, 36-6. Saturday's game will mark the end of Lawrenceville's first season under coach John Reydel. The team will carry a 4-1-1 record into the encounter.

Alumni Note

Two members of the Princeton Class of 1951 had a lot in common when the football teams of Choate and Lawrenceville met Saturday at Wallingford, Conn.

Jack Davison (who played fullback on Princeton's unbeaten 1950 eleven) was head coach of Choate. Jack Reydel (centerfielder on Princeton's NCAA District II baseball and Eastern League champions) was head coach of Lawrenceville.

Each coach put an unbeaten team on the field.

Each team played single wing football.

The mutual outlook on life ended with the final whistle, when Choate walked off the field an 18-7 victor, its winning streak still intact, while Lawrenceville suffered its first defeat in 27 games.

LET'S GO FISHING
Stony Brook Lakes Offered. Two conservation lakes being built under the auspices of the Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association will be open to the public, and fishing will be encouraged.

In making this announcement, Paul M. Van Wegen, president of the Association, said that the Bureau of Fisheries of the State Department of Conservation and Economic Development has purchased the sites of two conservation reservoirs, Lake Stony Brook in Hunterdon County, and Lake, Baldwin, north of Pennington.

Lake Stony Brook, which lies about two miles south of Ringoes, east of Route 69, is now under construction, and will provide about 11 acres of water. Lake Baldwin, will be built next summer on a site east of Route 69. It will be about 3 4 miles long.

Experts at the Bureau of Fisheries have not yet decided what fish to put into the two lakes, but they will probably stock the waters with large mouth bass, calico bass and some forage fish. Neither lake will be ready for stocking until next summer, and the fish will not be big enough for creel until 1963 at earliest, according to Mr. Van Wegen.

In addition to providing recreation sites for the area, the lakes will help to keep sediment out of Lake Carnegie, Mr. Van Wegen said.

KNOW YOUR PASTOR

Meet the Rev. Mr. Tyson. "It sure doesn't seem as if I just got here," the Rev. Albert D. Tyson, Jr., commented, "because of all the amazing things that have been happening lately." The Rev. Mr. Tyson, pastor of the 126-year old Mount Pisgah A.M.E. Church., arrived in Princeton only last June, succeeding the Rev. Yancey L. Sims.

"Since then, we've gotten 24 new members in the church, bringing the total to 270; renovated the kitchen, and begun on plans for a new addition," Mr. Tyson said. "Some of the members tell me to slow down, but everything keeps piling up."

The 34-year old minister's weekly schedule reads like a month's work for most people. Besides carrying a full load of 16 hours of studies at the Princeton Theological Seminary, he preaches twice a week usually, teaches a class in religious education, speaks at various meetings every night and still finds time for his regular parish visits.

"It's quite a challenge," he said, as he prepared to begin writing two papers due for a Seminary class. "But then I sort of know what to expect from a minister's life. My father, my grandfather, my great-grandfather and my wife's father were all pastors." The Rev. Mr. Tyson's father, the late Albert D. Tyson, Sr., was minister of churches in Orange and Asbury Park.

Trained at Rutgers. Born in Selma, Alabama, Mr. Tyson first studied biochemistry. While working for his master's degree at Rutgers, he felt called to the ministry He finished his work at Rutgers and entered theological training at the Boston University School of Theology.

For two years before coming here, the Rev. Mr. Tyson was the youngest Presiding Elder of the A.M.E. church, working in the Boston District. "I didn't have my own pastorate, but was responsible, as the Bishop's representative, for 18 churches covered by the Boston District," he explained.

"The Bishop knew I was still going to school and appointed me here," Mr. Tyson said. "I'm glad he did, for I find the school excellent, and the town is wonderful. Besides its heritage, it is a town with a lot to be proud of, mainly because of its people."

The Rev. Mr. Tyson lives with his family in the parsonage at 10 McLean Street, behind the church. His family includes Mrs. Tyson and four children: Albert 3rd, 13; Margaret, 10; Frederick, 7; and Mark, 5. Albert attends the Witherspoon Street School, while the three younger children attend Nassau Street School.

Emphasizes Sermons. Despite the pressures of school work and speech making, the Rev. Mr. Tyson spends the largest part of his time on his sermons. "There's no excuse for lack of quality," he stated. "A minister doesn't really have a 'captive audience.' He has to have something to say. If he doesn't, he just shouldn't get up there."

The proposed addition to the church is part of the Rev. Mr. Tyson's approach to the ministry. Architects are working on the plans, which call for an addition of new classrooms and meeting rooms to be attached to the left side of the building. "We're not going to change the auditorium, though," the Rev. Mr. Tyson said. "We've got enough space there."

Relationships of people are the most rewarding aspects of his job, the pastor feels. "To see people brought together into right relationship with each other; to see them enjoying life, especially as the result of the religious impact on our lives; this is what I love to see."

As a minister in Providence, R. I., the Rev. Mr. Tyson appeared on a television "Ministers' Workshop" program which presented to the public the various facets of a minister's life. For example, the ten ministers who rotated on the program might offer one week on brotherhood, one week on the meaning of a particular religious holiday, one week on the problems faced by a minister, and so on.

The Rev. Mr. Tyson appeared on this program, in his turn, for two years. He also spent seven years as a radio minister. During his time in Providence, he was president of the Ministers' Alliance, serving in that capacity for five years.

A MAN AND HIS BOOKS: Study combines with pastoral duties in the life of the Rev. Albert Tyson, new pastor at Mt. Pisgah A.M.E. Church. Books and study have always played an important role in the life of the young minister. For more information about the Rev. Mr. Tyson, see "Know Your Pastor," this page. (Staff Photo)

TOO MANY CARS and not enough money. We are looking for a good home for our cultured, capable, comfortable, 1961 Volkswagen station wagon. It has just arrived back from Europe. It was delivered to us in Amsterdam We used it three months, and it took us faithfully and easily over the snow-capped Alps, and through the heat of the Spanish plain. Not once did we have any trouble of any kind It is in perfect condition. It has a deluxe radio, sunroof, and enough room on the three spacious seats for nine fat people, or an army of kids. Very economical to use, as it needs no antifreeze, and goes many miles on little gas. If interested call WA 4-2173.

Dear TRAVELEX,

Back to Tokyo International Airport and on to Hong Kong, a fabulous place! We'll get lots of shopping done there and then take an evening tour of the city by automobile and ferry. We'll visit Aberdeen for dinner on a floating restaurant, the Chinese opera and a night club.

Next morning we'll tour the New Territories, see the farming villages, Castle Peak for luncheon. On the third day in Hong Kong we'll go by funicular up Peak, have lunch at Repulse Bay, then on to Happy Valley and the University of Hong Kong. We'll take the midnight steamer for Macao and spend the night on shipboard. Early in the morning we'll arrive at Macao, a Portugese colony and the "Monte Carlo of the Orient," visit Chinese temples including Ahma and go to some interesting gambling places. Depart via afternoon steamer to Hong Kong, transfer to Kai Tak Airport and so back to Princeton.
